All work undertaken by the Directors, the Management Group, and the many neighbours who have given their time so generously to work in the wood, has been voluntary

4. Objectives, Activities and Achievements

The bluebell wood forms part of the Ball Wood and Corporation Woods designated Wildlife Site. The overall Wildlife Site covers 247.02 hectares and is important for its ancient semi-natural broad-leaved woodland, with mixed woodland plantation.

The objectives of the CIC are to conserve, protect and improve the tranquillity, inherent beauty and natural environment of the bluebell wood on Wrington Hill identified as the 'Three Cornered Plantation', for the enjoyment and appreciation of local residents and visitors to the wood who recognise and respect these qualities.

The activities during the period include safety, conservation and improvement work.

Within the wood, the safety work has dealt with the hazards identified during the inspections. This has included cutting dead branches and felling dead or diseased trees in the vicinity of tracks and paths.

The conservation and improvement work has continued with the clearance of holly and undergrowth down into the south corner of the wood, opening up views into the wood over the whole length of the road adjacent to the wood and encouraging the spread of bluebells.

Members of the public have been excluded from those parts of the wood where work was being carried out and notices stating the private nature of the wood, normally just at the layby, were also erected during the bluebell flowering season at the main entrance and at the four other footpath entrances.

During the period, neighbours have worked in the wood on 10 days for some 80 man hours. We are most grateful to those who have given their time.

Despite all our hard work in the wood, it continues to look completely natural, as if we had left nature to its own devices, and we and others can continue to enjoy its "tranquillity, inherent beauty and natural environment."

During the year, local residents have continued to work together to conserve, protect and improve the bluebell wood and have had free access to enjoy and appreciate it. Ongoing conservation and improvement work has continued with the clearance of holly and undergrowth down into the south corner of the wood, opening up views into the wood over the whole length of the road adjacent to the wood. A Five Year Plan has been prepared to guide our activity over the short to medium term. During the reporting year, neighbours have worked in the wood on 11 days doing some 80 hours of voluntary work.
